

LAST EDITION

LAST EDITION

ACT OF GOV. DUNNE
WILL GIVE CONVICT'S
CHILD A NAME

MISS ELLEN GATES
STARR, HULL HOUSE
WORKER, ON TRIAL

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.
500 South Peoria St.

Tel. Monroe 353.
Automatic 51-422.
By Mail, 50 Cents a Month.

VOL. 3, NO. 145

Chicago, Thursday, March 19, 1914

ONE CENT

WITNESSES TELL HOW JELKE AND HIS SALESMEN TAUGHT FRAUD TRICKS

*Big Butterine Millionaire Found Guilty of Organizing To Cheat the Government—Smaller Men Were
the Big Boss' "Goats."*

John F. Jelke, Chicago's biggest butterine millionaire, the "man higher up" who helped send eleven "little fellows" to the Leavenworth penitentiary for fraud, was found guilty last night by a jury in the federal district court.

The guilt is fastened on Jelke of deliberately organizing his big business to cheat the government out of millions of dollars, and working the frauds twelve years at enormous profit.

Closely tied up with some of the most powerful politicians in Illinois and Ohio, every wire was pulled and everything that millions can do was used to stop a conviction of Jelke.

Newspaper advertising estimated at $1,200,000 for the past 18 months held back and played down public feeling in the case.

Nothing in the whole story is more dramatic than the fact that the government first captured eleven little fellows in 1910 and 1911 and in a few months threw them behind the bars at Leavenworth, where they served time for working frauds in coloring butterine, while the biggest one of them all, the man who showed them how to use coloring, ducked and